

REDBOX 1.0 USE ANYWHERE IRC CLIENT

RedBox 1.0 is a use anywhere IRC client. With versions for Mac OS X and Windows (XP recommended), you can put it on a mini CD-r and carry it with you to use wherever you have access to a computer:

- Campus computer lab
- Friend's computer
- Internet Cafe
- Library
- etc...

Using RedBox

To use RedBox, simply double click the applications icon. You will be presented with a window asking for your preferred IRC server and username. Clicking Ok will connect you to the IRC server. Once you are connected, you will need only type

/join channel

Replacing channel with the channel of your choice.

For example, to access the Nitrogen Narcosis Software support channel, you would connect to irc.freenode.net, then type /join #NNSoftware.

Help?

Product Support for RedBox is available from the Nitrogen Narcosis Software support forum:

<http://www.phpbbplanet.com/nnsupport/>

Redbox is freeware. It is distributed free of charge, and you may feel free to redistribute it, so long as you do not collect any fee for said redistribution, and it remains in the same form from which you downloaded it. I.e. all files from the original download, including this readme, must accompany this file. If you like Redbox, or any other Nitrogen Narcosis Software, please feel free to make a donation to encourage further development of our software products. See forum for details.